The Copy of a Letter written by his Highneſs Prince Eugene of Savoy to the King of Pruſſia, on Occaſion of the Battle of Hochſtet. Dated Aug. 16. 1704.

SIR,

YOUR Majeſty having doubtleſs been fully inform'd already of the Signal Victory we won the 13th of this Month over the French and Bavarians, I paſs over in ſilence many of the Particulars of that Action, leſt I ſhould be tedious to your Majeſty. But I cannot refrain from giving, with all Submiſſion, deſerved Praiſe to the Body of your Troops, which ſerv'd under my Command on this Occaſion, having been an Eye Witneſs, that both the Superior and Inferior Officers and private Soldiers, particularly the Foot who were in the Right Wing, fought with Intrepidity, and for ſeveral Hours ſuſtain'd the Efforts of the Enemy, who by God's Help, and by means of the great Fire of the ſaid Foot, were put into ſuch Diſorder, that being no longer able to ſtand before them, they were forc'd to fly with Precipitation, leaving us the Field of Battle and a glorious Victory. But, Sire, ſeeing noble Actions ſpring from the Heroick Conduct of a Commander, and that the worthy Examples of their Superior Officers generally inſpire the common Soldiers with double Courage; 'tis juſt to render to the Prince of Anhalt in particular the Praiſe ſo much his due: He was altogether careleſs of his Perſon; his Valour would not let him ſhun Danger; on the contrary he led on his Men to the Charge with undaunted Reſolution; ſo that to him may this Victory be in no ſmall meaſure attributed, to his immortal Glory. Sir, I could not forbear giving, in all Obedience, this Teſtimony to your Majeſty, of the Bravery, worthy of all Praiſe, ſhewn by your Troops under my Command; and at the ſame time to aſſure your Majeſty, that I will be wanting in nothing that may contribute to their Preſervation and Advantage; becauſe I ſhall always count it a very particular Happineſs to be able to render my ſelf worthy of your Majeſty's Eſteem, being with reſpectful Obedience, &c.

Hague, Nov. 28. 'The Articles of the Treaty lately 'made between the King of Pruſſia and the City of 'Dantzick, are as follows.

1. THis Treaty ſhall not be prejudicial in any Manner to the Crown of Poland, nor to the ſaid City, nor to its Incorporation with Poland, nor to its freedom of Religion, nor to its other Rights and Privileges.

2. His Pruſſian Majeſty's General ſhall be careful to aſſiſt the City with all his Forces, as effectually as if it were dependant on the King his Maſter; and his Majeſty ſhall make no Treaty with other Potentates, without including the City in it, as much as his own Subjects are included.

3. The King ſhall forthwith furniſh the City with 2000 Men; that is to ſay, 1500 Foot and 500 Horſe: Or, if the City had rather, they ſhall be all Foot; and that Number ſhall be increas'd if deſired.

4. If the City receive half a Regiment, it ſhall be oblig'd to take half the Officers; and if it takes an intire Regiment it ſhall have all the Officers. Such Troops ſhall take an Oath to the City to acquit themſelves bravely and faithfully on Occaſion, but ſhall obey his Majeſty's Orders.

5. If any Perſon of ſuch Troops ſhall commit any Crime or Fault, on the Guard or elſewhere, he ſhall be puniſh'd by the Governour of the City, with the Conſent of the Pruſſian Officers, who ſhall be conſulted on Occaſion; and without whoſe Approbation nothing that may be prejudicial or hazardous ſhall be tranſacted.

6. When the ſaid Troops ſhall be in Garriſon in the City or its Suburbs, they ſhall be paid Monthly, as the ordinary Garriſon of the City; but if they are quarter'd in the Territories depending on the City, they ſhall be ſubſiſted and paid in the ſame Manner as is practis'd in his Majeſty's Territories.

7. When the City finds it has no farther Occaſion for the ſaid Troops; it may ſend them back agen, after notifying ſuch its Intention a Month before to his Majeſty.

8. The City ſhall allow free Paſſage thro' its Territory to his Majeſty's Troops, as well from Pomerania to Pruſſia, as from Pruſſia to Pomerania; and the Pruſſian Commiſſaries ſhall oblige the Peaſants of the ſaid Territory to furniſh the neceſſary Proviſions. But when the ſaid Troops are to paſs thro' the City, only 100 Men ſhall paſs at a time, and ſhall be conducted through by a Guard, to the end the Burghers may be under no apprehenſion.

9. If the King ſhall be attack'd by a Forreign Enemy, the City ſhall give no Aſſiſtance to ſuch Enemy, except it ſhall happen to be the Crown of Poland.

10. His Majeſty agrees to the regulating of the Poſts, and will take Care they ſhall paſs and repaſs without Hindrance.

11. As alſo that the Grievances about the Strohm Geld ſhall be redreſs'd, to the Satisfaction of the City.

12. His Majeſty ſhall defend the City, in caſe any Attempt be made to trouble it, on account of the Confederacy of Warſaw.

13. His Majeſty ſhall aſſiſt the City, in Caſe it be moleſted on Account of the Inheritance of Rath.

14. This Treaty ſhall laſt 10 Years, and even during his Majeſty's Life, if he outlive that Term. After his Death the City ſhall be at Liberty to continue it longer or not. Mean time the Ratification of this Treaty ſhall be perform'd within 6 Weeks and under the Seal of the City.

Berlin, Aug. 26. 1704.

Secret Articles.

1. The King ſhall have Liberty to raiſe Recruits in the City for the Troops he ſhall have in it; and likewiſe to make other Levies in its Territory; but all ſecretly.

2. The City ſhall pay to his Majeſty 5000 Crowns a Year, as an Acknowledgement for his Royal Protection.

3. That the Quadruple Alliance, which is in Agitation to be concluded in Favour of the City; ſhall be the Foundation of this Treaty: And the City ſhall not be taken into his Majeſty's Protection before the Concluſion of the ſaid Alliance.

Berlin, Aug. 26. 1704.

'The

'This Treaty having been concluded while a 'Quadruple Alliance between the Queen of England, 'the King of Denmark, the King of Pruſſia, and the 'States General, was negociating. The Courts of 'England, Denmark, and ours, were not a little 'ſurpriz'd at it. Whereupon his Pruſſian Majeſty 'order'd his Miniſters to deliver a Declaration, to 'ſatisfie the ſaid three Courts. It does not appear 'the States are perfectly ſatisfied by this Declara-'tion; and the ſaid Quadruple Alliance is at preſent 'at a ſtand. Orders are come from his Pruſſian Ma-'jeſty, for an Apartment to be fitted up in his Palace 'here call'd the Old Court; Againſt the Arrival of 'his Son, the Prince Royal, who is ſhortly expected.
